BLOOMFIELD BRIEF NOTES.
Lovers of good skating enjoyed themselves last Monday, in this vicinity.
The pulpit of the Baptist Church will be occupied on Sunday by the Rev. J. F. Caldwell of Mac, Ill., who will preach both morning and evening. All are cordially invited to attend.
Olive Branch Lodge, No. 51, I. O. O. F., elected the following officers Monday evening: Noble Grand, W. H. Cook; Vice-Grand, John Rassbach; Recording Secretary, Eugene Stearns; Secretary, Wm. Hoffman; Treasurer, C. M. Lockwood.
Paul Karpis Council No. 35, N. P. U., at their last regular meeting elected the following named officers to serve one year from the 1st of January next: President, Otto J. Shortall; Vice President, Walter S. Carver; Sec'y Chas. Schiener; Treas., Frank Hamann; Collector, Louis Johnson; Counselor, John Simonson.
Bloomfield Council, No. 96, Royal Arcanum, will be visited on Thursday, Jan. 1, by District Deputy Frank J. Griffith, who will install their newly elected officers. On that occasion the Council will throw wide open the doors and invite their wives and many friends to come and partake of their hospitality.
The children, grandchildren and a few friends of Mr. Charles Gilbert tendered him a surprise on Saturday, December 17, the occasion being the 72nd year of his birth. After a handsome arm-chair had been presented to him, the evening passed very pleasantly. Numerous recitations, etc., were participated in by those present. All left wishing him many years in which to enjoy the chair presented to him.
The many friends of Mrs. Paulina Bruner and family, formerly of this place will be pleased to hear from them in their new home at Louisville Ky. They were, when residing here, active and earnest members of Westminster Church and when they left Bloomfield to make their homes in the West left behind a host of friends. In their correspondence with some of these they write that they are very happy in their new home, that they are prosperous and that all their circumstances tend to make them comfortable.
A large and appreciative audience filled Park M. E. church on overflowing on Wednesday evening, the 28th inst. Two large Christmas trees laden with toys, candies, apples and oranges delighted the hearts of the young, and the older persons present were made happy by being sharers in the joys of the little ones. Singing, recitations and responsive readings served to make the hours pass swiftly. The proceeds, apart from the regulation box of candy and oranges, consisted of books, photographs and toys for the children, and gifts of various kinds for the teachers and friends of the school. The audience were much pleased to hear the music of one of our prominent business men, called, who, being too modest to stand forward and kindly urged and encouraged by Superintendent Hubert to come and receive a gift presented as a token of the high appreciation in which his efforts in behalf of church and Sunday school are held. Superintendent Hubert officiated as master of ceremonies and dispenser of the good things and in a genial manner and kindly acts contributed largely to the pleasures of all who were present.
The Christmas entertainment for the Sunday School of the First Presbyterian Church was intended to be a surprise as to the particulars. It took place on Wednesday evening in the Sunday School room, which was well filled by the people of the church, great and small. A platform had been erected across the west end of the room, but there was no printed programme. The festivities opened with an instrumental trio—piano, violin and voice. After this the curtains of the stage were withdrawn, disclosing a scene representing the dominions of The "King of No." a comical that was then performed in part of the Sunday school. It proved to be a very interesting feature of the entertainment and quite creditable to all who took part. From the gentleman who personated the king down to the "little tot" whose sole duty was to sleep. Besides the comical, there were very clever recitations by Miss Miln, of Passaic, which, with the singing and instrumental music, lent a pleasing variety to the occasion. The pastor of the church was present and made a short address at the close, and Mr. T. H. Ward announced the different parts of the programme. To the gentleman named and to the Superintendent, Mr. Herbert Biddulph, and to Mrs. Ballantine especially, who arranged and directed the festivities, no little credit is due.

Our Building and Loan Association.
AN EXAMPLE OF ITS UTILITY.
The annual statement of the Bloomfield Building and Loan Association, published this week, shows at a glance the advantages within reach of every thoughtful and thrifty person. By the systematic saving and investment of small amounts monthly, a man with even a very small income can easily secure through this association a home of his own; or if he is already owner of a home, by becoming a member of the association he extends to others not so well situated in that respect, at the same time providing himself with an absolutely safe and extremely profitable investment.
The experience of the Bloomfield Building and Loan Association, in its two years existence clearly proves its value to the community and to individual members. It has already enabled members to become possessors of homes without submitting to the considerable trouble, expense, delay and risks inevitable by the method of borrowing money, mortgaging and building in the old way. Its beneficial advantages will be more apparent, as the years go by.
For the information of those not familiar with the practical working of the Building Association, let us illustrate the mode of business by relating the experience of a mechanic who joined the association at its formation, two years ago. Mr. Smith (we adopt a fictitious name) came in as a member in January 1886, and subscribed for eight shares of stock. His first monthly payment was $8 and he has paid in that amount regularly each month since. Soon after becoming a member, a building lot came to his notice which he proposed to buy with the view of improving it. The price was $350. He had in bank about $150 which he had already saved. He paid this upon the lot, and then asked for a loan from the association to complete the purchase. The directors authorized and made a loan of $200 to Mr. Smith, taking as security a mortgage upon his lot. He continues his regular payments at $8 monthly into the treasury of the Association together with interest upon the loan at 6 per cent.
In October last his lot was virtually paid for, and he was ready to commence erecting a house. He applied for a new loan of $100 dollars, which the Association granted, and as the work of the builder proceeded, payments were advanced by Mr. Smith and the small one of $200 canceled. He will move into his new house the first of the year. This will relieve him from paying rent ($12 per month) instead of which he will pay less than $100 per month interest upon his loan or only $8 per month for a better home. He only $8 per month for a better home. He continues to pay $8 monthly into the Association fund, but these payments operate as regular instalments upon the principal of his loan, and at the same time yield him a profit derived from the earnings of the Association, in which he participates, and which profits constantly tend to reduce the amount of his indebtedness. His stock steadily increases in value. His stock will attain its maximum value of $200 in a considerably shorter period than the 16 years and 8 months that would be required if the Association realized no profits. Probably in less than eleven years (by which time he will have paid on his eight shares $1056) the series of stock he is in will have reached $200 in value, in which event his mortgage of $1000 will be cancelled, he having in the time stated paid a loan of $1000 with $1056, and during eight or nine years has owned and occupied a house at from 25 to 50 per cent less than he could rent as good a one for, and for the future will have it free of all debt and so have nothing more to pay.

An Association of this kind, it will be seen, is composed of two classes—borrowers and investors, though in actual practice each member is an investor. All become entitled to and obtain at some time $200 for each share taken, the difference between classes being that the borrower may get his $200 soon after he begins payments, while the non-borrower may wait for his until the investments and profits of the Association make the shares of that series worth $200; then it is paid to him. When, for example, 500 members have paid in, at one meeting $500, each is equitably entitled to his part of that money, but generally only a few are in want of money at that time as borrowers, and as each of these has the same right to it, the preference is settled by the President offering the money to loan at auction—the member willing to bid the highest premium for $500 obtaining it, providing his security is ample. The premium paid for loans in this Association have ranged from 2 to 5 per cent. It has been proved that it is cheaper to pay even 25 per cent premium in an association, than to pay a "bonus" of 5 per cent in ordinary mortgage loans. These premiums, with the occasional fines for delinquent payments and the interest upon loans, constitute the earnings of the Association.
An investor in the Bloomfield Building and Loan Association, if he so desires, can withdraw at any time and obtain the "surrender value" of his shares, which is in that case fully as much as his money would bring him invested in a savings bank.
Another advantage peculiar to the Association is that temporary loans are made upon one's stock to the extent of 75 per cent, for which he pays simple interest while he keeps the money. In this way, in emergencies, a member has the use of the money he has paid in without losing his interest in the earnings of the Association.
The whole business is based upon principles of thrift and economy, joined with the co-operative feature of uniting small investors and borrowers under a safe and conservative management.
Absolute security is guaranteed, since ample bonds are furnished by the officers to protect the Association until the funds are secured by real estate mortgage, and this security, it will be seen, improves every month, by reason of the constant increase in value of the stock which is also pledged as collateral. The Association is a virtually a mutual banking company, differing from ordinary banks in that a "run" upon it is impossible, as the depositors and stockholders are identical.

Postponement.
Owing to the severe illness of the Rev. Dr. Kennedy, it is thought best to postpone the Tableau Exhibition (advertised to be held at Library Hall, December 31, 1887) until later in the season, date to be hereafter announced. All tickets previously issued for this entertainment will be honored.
BY ORDER OF THE COMMITTEE

—Mr. Daniel V. Thomas died on Tuesday at his residence in Bay Ridge, N. Y., having been ill but a few days with inflammation of the bowels. He was a very promising young man, a salesman in Henry Lindemeyer's warehouse. His funeral took place yesterday afternoon, at the home of his father, Mr. George Thomas.

Glen Ridge.
—The second meeting of the Glen Ridge Whist Club was held at Mrs. Genin's, on Ridgewood avenue, Friday evening, Dec. 22d. It was a very enjoyable event. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Bellon, Mr. and Mrs. Tower, Mr. and Mrs. Root, Mr. and Mrs. Niven's, the Misses Potter, Mr. and Miss Enl, Miss Jones, Mr. Albert Root, Mr. Davis, Mr. Dodd, and Mr. Hines.
—A new time-table will go into effect on the Bloomfield Branch of the D. & W. R. R. immediately after January 1st.
—Tucker Peoples, Esq., of Glen Ridge, is now visiting his relatives at Norfolk, Va.

On last Wednesday evening the following were elected officers of Excelsior Lodge, K. of H., for the ensuing year. Past Dictator, L. B. Clapper; Dictator, E. W. Cliftlering; Vice Dictator, John Bland; Ass't Dictator, C. F. Farrand; R. porter, Willis H. Cadmus; F. R. C. Chaplain, E. B. Corby; Guide, J. U. Dellagene; Guardian, T. B. Mitchell; Sen., H. J. Paxton; Representative to Grand Lodge, G. M. Cadmus; alternate, W. H. Dodd; Trustees, C. M. Rotherham, J. V. Smith; Martin Hummel.

Mr. Dodd and His Employees.
THEY ADJUST A "DIFFERENCE" OF TWENTY YEARS' STANDING.
One of the pleasant incidents of the holiday season in Bloomfield occurred at the old established and extensive carriage building works of N. Harvey Dodd, on Bloomfield avenue, last Saturday afternoon. Mr. Dodd, upon his return from Newark, where he usually goes on Saturday, proceeded to pay off his employees at 5 o'clock and when he had finished the men seemed disposed to linger about the office and wood-working room, which had been cleared up with more than usual care for Saturday night. One of the number, Mr. Thomas W. Smith, stepped forward and addressing Mr. Dodd, said in rather serious manner; that there was some trouble between employee and employer that they thought must be settled before the year closed. "It was the proper time," he said, "for an adjustment of past grievances." The genial employer who had never dreamt it possible for a strike, or anything of the kind to occur in his establishment, was taken completely by surprise, and when it turned out to be a presentation speech and the placing in his hands of a magnificent gold-headed cane, he could only say: "Boys, there are times when the heart is too full for utterance; I can only say I thank you." The event was witnessed by but few others than those immediately connected with the place. Mr. Theodore Osborn, now assistant street commissioner, in Newark, and engaged years ago as carriage trimmer for Mr. Dodd was present, and Mr. William S. Clark, formerly at the Quinby carriage works, formerly with Mr. Dodd, sent his regrets at not being able to be present. When the happy idea of procuring the cane was made known to his fellow workmen of one of them there was a spontaneous readiness of each to contribute that spoke volumes in praise of Mr. Dodd as an employer. A citizen who can carry on a manufacturing business for thirty years, and at the end of that time have no enemies among his former or present workmen, is to be congratulated as a successful business man, and one who has gone far toward solving the "labor problem."

Y. M. C. A. Notes.
—The Woman's Auxiliary, have recently purchased a fine supply of dishes to be used at the receptions of the Association. They are especially suited, however, by the gift of Mr. James Davidson of eight handsome, decorated bread-plates.
—A gentleman's kid glove was found on the street near the rooms, and handed to the General Secretary. It is about a No. 7, Dent's make, terracotta color. Owner can call for same.
—John Sanderson will lead the meeting at 4 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the rooms.
—It is hoped that the members of the Association will arrange to spend considerable time at the rooms on Monday, as no one can receive and welcome their particular friends as well as themselves. Visitors will appreciate it, too.
—The anniversary exercises will probably be held Wednesday evening, January 25th.
—January 11th is the third of the Association's course of entertainments. Pearl, the Mrs. Camp-Miss Davis-Messrs. Klosser-Brucklos quartette, and German Students' Glee Club.
—The arrangements for the open house New Year's Day are now about complete, and will prove to be all that is expected by those who call. The Woman's Auxiliary will assist the young men in receiving and also serve refreshments. The hours will be from 7 until 10 o'clock P. M. It is hoped no one will wait for a special invitation, but that all ladies and gentlemen will accept of the general "invite" and attend. It is a new feature in Bloomfield, but will doubtless prove a pleasant one. To those who have never visited the rooms this will be a good opportunity to do so.

Westminster Church was crowded Tuesday evening on the occasion of the Christmas celebration. A very beautiful Christmas tree was arranged. The European Society entertained the assemblage with music.
—The fair for the benefit of the Church of the Sacred Heart has thus far proved very successful. In the voting contest Miss Josephine Cullen won the diamond ring, and Foreman Foster, of Active Hose, won the firemen's badge.
